

CONSUMPTION BRED IN CELLAR BAKERIES

Awful Menace to the City's Health in Foul Places Where Bread Is Made—Strikers Claim They Are Striking for Sanitary Relief.

Bread on the east side was quoted at 18 cents a pound last night, and today it was said that it would jump to 20, and probably go higher because of the strike of the kosher bakers.

There are more than 2,000 men on strike now, and this means that 2,000 families will be without food and money for house rent in the next day or two. Already the pangs of hunger are being felt, the men are growing more desperate, and rioting is more frequent.

Just why are these men striking? Joseph Reibel, of No. 33 Forsyth street, was asked. Reibel was standing in Clinton street. Five hundred or more men were about him, some talking in a friendly way, some gruffly, some whispering, some yelling gruffly, some shouting, some in garments patched and ragged, and all angry and excited.

Reibel is a man of exceptional education. He speaks several languages. With a wife and six children, he has been able with a wage of $2 a week to save money for just such a time as this. Reibel was in deep thought when the question was put to him and he was repeated:

"Just why are these men striking?"

"For life," he answered. "Yes, that's the best answer. They are striking for life."

Reibel has not engaged in any of the fierce fighting. He says he struck when the call came, and he will stay out until every union man is starved or until the bakers make every concession demanded of them.

"This is more serious than appears on the surface," he began. "Look at those men. How many of them do you say there are? Five hundred? Possibly 100. Well, it is safe to say that 75 per cent. of those men have consumption. Where did they get it? In the bakeries. I want to show you bakeries that are supposed to be sanitary; places that are supposed to be inspected by the department of health."

Reibel led the reporter through a struggling mass of men, many of whom showed that they were far advanced in pulmonary trouble. Some were leaning more than boys, but they were bent as if by age. Their chests were sunken and the deep cough had marked them as consumption's victims. Others were old men, who had gone to work in the bakeries late in life. Consumption had caught them, too. Of those seven hundred men not one strong, healthy man could be seen by a close observer. If a man lacked the cough, the heave, the sunken chest and the hectic flush his skin was like the skin of the

GIRL SOLD OLD SUITOR'S GIFTS TO HELP HIS RIVAL

Edelson Wants "Them Presents Back" but Has Only Judgment.

Miss Ella Brill, charming in a light blue shirtwaist suit partly covered by a long white duck coat, spent most of the morning before Referee William Greenhalgh, of No. 49 Chambers street, explaining what she had done with some $300 worth of jewelry which Samuel Edelson, a one-time suitor for her hand, had given her.

The rejected suitor and his successful rival, Elias Jaller, a law student, both listened attentively to what the young woman said.

This story of east side love came before the public early this year when Edelson sued Miss Brill in the Fourth District Court and obtained a judgment for $288.41, which represented money spent by him for jewelry, which he presented to the object of his affection and could not get back when the break came.

Sold Jewels, She Says. Miss Brill admitted to-day that she received the presents from her former suitor, but declared she had sold them to assist Jaller to pay his way through the law school.

The young woman told of having sold a diamond ring for $100 to a stranger man. "He was a peddler," she said. "I cannot tell what his name is." She was sure he did not have long whiskers. This was the nearest she could come to a description. Another ring she sold for $70.

"You have no jewelry now?" asked the referee.

"No," she said, and looking at Jaller added: "There is my jewel."

"Did Jaller give you a note or other security?"

"He did not, but I expect he into marry me."

A "Brotherly" Affair. "It seems strange to me that brother Odd Fellows should be fighting," ventured Mr. Jaller.

"If you are an Odd Fellow, you know a member has to be an honest man," came the reply. Jaller gave to the referee an account of his case. He said he had first seen the girl at an affair given by a benevolent association on the east side. "Sure, I noticed that she wore Jewelry," he said in reply to a question by Mr. Greenhalgh. He declared he had not courted the girl until she told him her engagement to Edelson was broken. He himself had suggested that the jewels be used in helping him through law school.

"Did you tell the mother you would marry the girl?"

"Not at that time," Edelson admitted that he had been taken in by another girl and lost some jewelry, and for this reason made all his gifts to Miss Brill conditional on their being married.

GENEROUS CHILDREN AID THE SICK BABIES.

Boys and Girls Raise Money to Help The Evening World Sick Babies Fund.

Boys and girls throughout Greater New York are busy raising money by means of fairs, sales and other entertainments for The Evening World Sick Babies Fund, and thus by their splendid vacation work, bringing renewed health and cheer into many a darkened home.

The four children whose pictures are here published raised $5.08 for the fund.

Carl Lobenthal, Abraham Fox, Annie Winkler, Irene Rosenfeld. They raised $5.08 for the fund.
